

Webinar on Young People's Employment-related Geographical Mobilities, March 2018

Call for Expressions of Interest

The On the Move Partnership (www.onthemovepartnership.ca) is hosting a webinar on young people's employment-related geographical mobilities in late March 2018.

Do you have statistical, field, historical or policy-related findings/knowledge about the work-related mobilities among young people within and into Canada or, for our international co-investigators and advisors, among youth in other parts of the world? If so, would you be interested in developing a short presentation for this webinar? Presentations should normally be a maximum of 8-10 minutes in length. They can focus on research findings; policy gaps, supports or impacts; lessons learned from an initiative or intervention aimed at mobile youth; or some other relevant topic.

If you are interested in presenting in this webinar, please send Nicole Power at npower@mun.ca a draft title and short expression of interest (maximum 100 words), no later than January 20, 2018. Nicole is the main organizer for this webinar. Please also circulate this call to colleagues, postdoctoral fellows and graduate students interested in this work and encourage them to respond.
